PREFATORY.

The word Mor-gan is a Cymric derivative, meaning one born by the sea, or, a son of the sea (muir, sea; gin, begotten). It is not infrequently found written Margan, or Moregan, and its antiquity in any of these forms—even in the fourth contury, when the heresiarch Pelagius, a Celtic monk named Thomas Morgan, rendered his name into Greek (Πελαγος μιος)—was, as we would say now, pre-historic.

The date of Pelagius precedes by a long interval the next reference to the name,—a shadowy one, yet not to be omitted from the record,—as follows: King Arthur—a legendary king of Britain, but not improbably the adumbration of a real local "king" or chieftain therein—is said, after a defeat in some one of his battles with another local potentate, to have removed his queen for safety to the coast of what is now Glamorganshire; and her child, Arthur's younger son, there born, was named Mor-gan—the man born by the sea; whence Glamorgan—the country of the man born by the sea.

The Greek form of it, as used by the theologian who first den. I the doctrine of original sin, seems to have been the first appearance of the name in undoubted history. Much etymological learning, and much of it no doubt misleading, has been expended on the name. Shakespeare's use of it for one of his characters—the good old Belarius in "Cymbeline"—I find made the subject of a note by a little-read authority on Rosicrucianism and kindred mystical matters of little inport, of which I quote only a few words at second hand;

"Nimrod connects the name Morgan, Imogen, or Imorgen, with the " Morwening or the break of day, with the city of Aurora, or the city of "Medea and of Circe. "donis the hunter was the Sm of the Morning." He identifies Imogen with Morgana, whose history seems to imply that " she was Helen."

-only to show how the name has been cited for its supposed mysterious significance by writers who have appetite an i piedeliction for such occultisms. † If the name Morgan is to the connected with Shakespeare at all, I prefer to connect 1 in this wise: One Joan Jons, relict of John Johns, otherwise Morgan, late of Bristol, brewer, left a will in which, arroug other bequests, she leaves-"To my curate, Sir In mas. "Schaftespere, uni collitegia de velvet cum leque : "cerico." This Sir Th has Schaftespere (the "Sir" being the title generally given to parsons or village priests, and not significant of rank) was also a witness to this will, which was proved on Friday, December 17th, 17 Henry VIII., in Castal. having been previously proved at Lambeth. He is also in several other Bristol wills registered at Somerset Hou his name is variously spelled "Schaftespere," "Schaftle plant, and "Shakespeir." He had a sister who died unroused. named "Jone Shackspere," His own will was entered at Somerset House, August 22d, 1559, § and begins, I. Sir "Thomas Shaksphere, Clark, I in full possession of, etc., give "to Anne Wyllson, her dettes being paid, 10 f to be zin the "world again; to my sister Grace, wife of Richard Storeten "5 £; to my sister, Jone Shackspere, 5 £; to Tommasin "Cooke, my sister, 5 f; to Sir Albon Dolman, my bell "gowne and my books, to praie for my soul; to the poore or "St. Bartholomew, my fether bed; to Sir William Berry and

"Pynner, 6/8 or mv second gowne; and the residue of my "gods, after my legacies be paid, to the poor." This Thomas Shakespeare was an ancestor, as it is inferred, of the diamatist, one of whose sisters was also named Jone, or Joan (spelling being in those days an indifferent matter, even of common names and words). At any 1 e, however inferential, it is pleasant to connect, even in the most attenuated relation, the name of Morgan with that of the great dramatist. We know that Shakespeare touches Welshmen in his plays with a sor; of affectionate humor, making Parson Evans, with all his chilities, the presiding genius of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," and Fluellen—undoubtedly phonetic for Llewelyn—receive the commendation of Henry the Fifth himself for his valor, which his peculiarities only emphasized and illustrated.

The scenes of the Arthurian Lerends were in Wales. The Round Table was at Caerleon on the Usk, and Merlin and all the giants, dwarfs, wizards, enchanted people and magical concerns were flourishing in that little principality, one of whose towns was, and is to-day, Caermarthen, or, in present orthography, Carmarthen.

In this town the Morgan line must content itself with discovering its earliest known ancestor. Resisting the temptation to draw upon Sir Thomas Mallory and all his attractive Welsh preserves, it is sufficient to say that this town, of which we present a view as it appears in 1892, is situated on the River Towy, which empties into Carmarthen Bay, an estuary of the Brissent a view as it appears in 1892, is situated on the River Towy, which empties into Carmarthen Bay, an estuary of the Bristol Channel; has at present about ten thousand inhabitants, and does a prosperous business in the tin plate and lead obtained from quarries in the adjacent hills. The town itself is supposed to be the Maridunum mentioned by Cæsar in his "Commentaries," near which the two branches of his great road vay—the Via Julia—diverged; and to return to Shake-speare, the dramatist perhaps had this very town in mind as the scene of those parts of "Cymbeline" which are located in Wales, on the road leading from Bristol (a city nearly associated with the American Morgans, as will be seen later on in these pages) to Milford Haven, to which Imogen started on her solitary journey when she entered the cave of Belarins-("Myself, Belarius, that am Morgan called" +- and found entertainment and shelter. Here, too, according to the nebulous authorities, was the birthplace of Merlin the Wizurl, in the sixth century. In its St. Peter's Church Sir Richard Stock was buried, and other memories cluster about its monument, to the Welsh Fusileers who fell in the Crimea, and a bronze statue to General Nott, and an obelisk to the memory of Sir Thomas Picton. The old castle of Caermarthen, still preserved, often changed hands in the constant fighting of the early Welsh chieftains with each other, as well as in subsequent warfare with Saxon and Norman foes. It was standing when . here King Edward the First drove Llewelyn into the Mynydd Du, or Black Mountains, and so brought all Wales unde the English crown. And here in the Parliamentary wars the R material troops defended it against the Roundheads, who finally reduced it, since when it and the old walls of the town have been lest to their own picturesque decay.

Prior to the Roman invasion, the district now known is Carmarthenshire was inhabited by a warlike tribe called by the Romans the Demetæ. Of this tribe, of which the Westername has escaped chronicle, a man named Cadivor-fawr was in the year 1089 a chieftain. His command lay in Dyfod (possibly the suggestion of Demetæ), or, as it is now named, Pembrokeshire. His wife was Elen, daughter and heiress of another chieftain, Llwch Llawen. The arms given to Cade or were argent, a lion rampant, gardant sable, and to his sufe, sable, a boar argent, his head gules, collared and chained or, browsing beneath a holly tree proper. He died in 1089, and was buried at Carmarthen. The names of his two oldest sons are unknown. Our researches begin—when the line of Morgan finds its first ancestor—with his third son, Bleddri.

In the following pages will be found—as perhaps is the most convenient arrangement—the history of each ancestor of the American line of Morgan epitomized, as far as known, under the entry of his name in its place in the genealogical line.

^{• &}quot;Cymbeline," III. hi. 106.

HERALDIC HISTORY.

THE arms which the family of Morgan usually bear are as follows:

ESCUTCHEON.—On a field or, a griffin segreant sable, with wings addorsed.

CREST.—On a wreath a stag's head couped or, attired gules. But this is only borne for convenience and brevity. The full blazon, at the date of Miles Morgan's emigration to America, was as given herein, namely, quarterly of twelve. Nine of these quarterings appear on the monument of Ann, relict of Sir Lewis—son of Sir Thomas—Morgan, of Rhiwpena Morgan, who was knighted March 25th, 1629. Lady Ann died in 1635, the year before Miles Morgan emigrated to the New World, April 16th, 1636. The other three had been borne previously by his ancestors.

Still otner arms which the family in America are entitled to bear will be found noted in the body of this work, in the chapter passing our record from Bleddri of Caermarthen to Miles Morgan the emigrant.

These twelve quarterings, which will be repeated hereafter with each entry, are as follows:

No. 1, Morgan.—As above, alluded to in this work as Morgan.

We are unable to state why this should have been the principal quartering of the arms as found in 1635. The bearing given below as No. 2 seems to have been the earlier. Sir Thomas Morgan, of Langstone and Pencoyd, in 1482—knighted in 1495—seems to have first used the griffin instead of the lion in his shield.

No. 2. CADIVOR.—On a field argent, a lion rampant regardant, sable. This was borne by Cadivor's grandson, Llewelyn-ap-Ivor, of Tredegar, Lord of St. Clear, who died in or about the year 1360 or 1375. With this coat of arms became connected the motto, Ofner na ofne angau-"Fear him who fears not death"—the reported answer of one of the race to the Saxon Edgar when ordered with other Welsh leaders to row his barge upon the Dee. These arms, with transposed colors, and this motto, with a lion rampant argent for crest, were used by many branches of the family, and their descendants through a female line as well, including Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector of England, through his mother's family, whose ancestors had been of Lewis-Morgan. position of the colors is supposed to have occurred at some period, in courtesy to the rank and possessions of one intermarrying—a custom of which there are many examples entered in Welsh family records.

No. 3, BLEDDRI.—On a field argent, three bull's heads sable. These arms were first borne by Bleddri, third son of Cadivor-fawr. The descendants of Ivor Howell, or Haell, a grandson of Llewellen of Tredegar, inserted a chevron between the bull's heads. The Lewis family of St. Pierre used the Cadivor-fawr lion with the griffin (No. 1) for a crest. And in this shape the arms were borne by Lieutenant-General Edward Morgan, Deputy Governor of Jamaica, in 1664; and by Sir Henry Morgan, called "The Buccaneer," Captain in the Royal Navy in 1664 and Admiral in 1670, Lieutenant-Governor of Jamaica 1675–1678, of whom more will be said further on in these pages.

No. 4, FLEMING.—On a field gules, fretty argent and a fez azure.

No. 5, TREDEGAR.—Argent a lion rampant, gardant sable, crowned gules.

No. 6, PROSSER.—On a field sable, a cross engraled between four spear heads, argent.

No. 7, Ap-Meredith.—On a field argent, a lion rampant gules.

No. 8, Norris.—On a field belietly, a cross flory argent.

No. 9, LLEWELYN-AP-IVOR.—On a field gules, three chevrons argent.

No. 10, Morgan. - As No. 1.

No. 11, FORTESCUE.—On a field azure, a bend engrailed argent or.

No. 12, CILFYNYDD.—On a field sable, on a fee argent, between three cinquefoils or, two mullets.

- XVII. 2. ROBERT MORGAN, third son of Thomas of Llanryhmny—was living in London 1671-76. He was the father of: 1. Sir Henry. John. 2. Thomas, whence Morgan of Llangattog. 3. Catherine; married John Lloyd, and had Richard Lloyd of Bristol; clothier and draper.
- XVII. 1. SIR HENRY JOHN MORGAN. Was born in 1637. In early boyhood ran away from home to Bristol or Milford Haven, and shipped as a sailor before the mast on a vessel sailing for Barbadoes. Arriving there, he went to Jamaica, and joined a band of buccaneers, of which he subsequently became the leader. He increased his command by admitting foreigners of all nationalities, and ultimately, by captures of vessels, became possessed of a formidable fleet, and was able to terrorize the seas in the vicinity. His earliest successes were on the coast of Campeche, but he soon became master of the Spanish main, which, with its shores and territory formiles inland, he laid under contribution. With his fleeet he captured all the important seaports, and forced them to become tributary to him, which made him the practical sovereign of the territory. He at one time combined his forces with a still more desperate character named Manswelt (or Mansfield), taking upon himself the title of vice-admiral, and they together captured the island of Santa Catalina, upon the coast of Costa Rica; advanced upon Cartagena, from which they were obliged, however, to retire without capturing, owing to a quarrel in their own ranks between the English and French buccaneers. Upon Manswelt's death, Morgan assumed the title of admiral, and with his fleet of twelve vessels ravaged Los Cargos and the southern coast of Cuba. Landing, he marched inland, took and ravaged Puerto Principe, took Puerto Bello in New Grenada (1668), carrying by assault its three fortresses, putting the garrisons to the sword, and extorting by torture the wealth of the rich citizens. On payment of an enormous ransom by the governor of Panama, he evacuated the city. inforced by a body of French buccaneers, under Pierre le Picard. Morgan with nine hundred and fifty men, captured Maracaibo, a city of 26,000 inhabitants, in 1669, and evacuated it upon payment of a heavy ransom. On his return he captured an entire Spanish squadron, and reached Jamaica with an enormous booty. In the following year he organized a raid upon Panama, rendezvousing at Cape Tibuion with thirty-seven vessels and three thousand men; appointing, as his second in command, a Frenchman named Bradelet. He captured La Ranchiers near Cartagena; took, for a second time, the island of Santa Catalina, where he found stores of powder, and impressed guides, and assaulted and carried Fort San Lorenzo, at the mouth of the Chagres River, killing three hundred of its garrison. Here he left all but fifteen hundred of his followers, whom he embarked in canoes, and ascended the Chagres River, fighting Indians and overcoming obstacles, suffering much from hunger, ultimately appearing before Panama, July 26, 1671. found the city garrisoned with four regiments of regulars, besides 2,000 Indians and 300 armed citizens, capturing, sacking, and destroying the city. Here, however, his ambition seems to have become sated, and he returned to England with, it is said, some $2,000,000 in gold, the proceeds of his operations. He married Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Charles Morgan, captain in the Royal Navy; was knighted by James II., (who recognized Morgan's exploits as in furtherance of British dominion in the New World, and, so as patriotic instead of personal:) was commissioned captain in. the Royal Navy, and appointed Governor of Jamaica, dying in that office in 1690. He was also appointed a commissioner of admiralty. He published (London, 1683,) an account of his voyage to Panama, and, dying childless, bequeathed the bulk of his property to the Bundless and ARCHBOLD families, with a legacy to his sister, Mrs. John Lloyd. His coat of arms, Quarterly of four. I. CADIVOR; 2. Morgan; 3. Bleddri; and 4. Vert on a chevron argent, four pheons sable.

Married Margaret Perry, after death of his first wife, and she died in Atlanta, Ga., March 2, 1894; had one child, Eva Missouri. Dr. Morgan settled in Knoxville, Tenn., shortly after the war, and entered upon the practice of medicine. He was among the first. if not the very first, homeopathic physician in East Tennessee. He soon demonstrated his ability, and for many years previous to, and until his death, was regarded as the leading physician in that section. Of modest and gentle nature, his greatest pleasure was found in his profession and among his books.

He was a member of many secret benevolent organizations, and in all was honored with high office.

On July 4, 1876, he founded and organized in Knoxville, Tenn., the United Order of the Golden Cross, a secret benevolent order, which has grown with remarkable popularity, especially in the Eastern States. After filling every office the Order could bestow, the chair of Founder was created; into this he was inducted, and he filled it at the time of his death.

Thomas Maud 2d, was probably the grandfather of Daniel Morgan of Virginia, Major-General in Continental Army; won battle of Hannah's Cowpens, where he defeated British under General Tarleton. It is supposed that differences between General Morgan and his parents resulted in his leaving his home in New Jersey, and seeking his fortune in Virginia, whence he rapidly rose to the distinguished elevation of a victorious Major-General in the Army of the Revolution. At any rate, General Morgan preserved until his death a proud and absolute silence as to his father and mother, and although no efforts have been left untried by his descendants to solve the mystery, absolutely no information on the subject is obtainable as to his immediate progenitors. His line is continued infra.

XXI. 2d. JAMES MORGAN, married Margaret Evertsen. Children: James, Charles, Nicholas, Stephen, Sarah, Mary, Susan, Abbey, Margaret. Margaret Evertsen was the daughter of Nicholas Evertsen, of New York. He laid out, just south of Perth Amboy, on Raritan Bay, where the present station, named Morgan, on the New York and Long Branch Railway now stands, a vast estate, his sources of revenue being the clay pits in the vicinity, which yielded what was for those days a princely income. The manor house, which was of large extent, stood until 1874, when it was burned, with all its stores of pictures and plate, being closed at the time. One painting alone, that of Susannah Roeters, mother of Margaret Evertsen, was saved. Six hundred acres, the remnant of the vast property, was sold in 1893 by the Chancery Court, to settle the claims of the heirs, but few of whom are living. One of them, Charles Morgan's son Alfred, removed to New Orleans, and built a home near that city, on the Mississippi, which he named Morganza.

Morgan, Margaret, George, Elizabeth, Mary, Emma, Harry Monmouth.

Margaret Morgan Herbert married De Witt Clinton Mather, of New York City.

XV. (a) GEORGE MORGAN, Attorney at Law (son of XV. above), of Newport, then of Rogerston, died about 1690.

BRANCH IN AMERICA FROM THOMAS MAUD MORGAN.

XVIII. (2) from Bassalleg above.

I. NATHAN MORGAN, Virginia, 1752.

II. Daniel, married, 1. ——. Issue: 1. Abel. 2. Nathan. 3. Dozin. 4. Enoch. Married, 2, Elizabeth Williams, and removed to North Carolina. Issue. 1. Beverley. 2. Ebenezer. 3. Daniel. 4. Nancy. 5. Webster. 6. Samuel. 7. Rachel. 8. James. 9. Lewis. 10. Williams; removed to Indian Creek, now Harrison County, Indiana, afterwards to what is now Switzerland County, Indiana, where he died 1834.

III. Daniel (son of Nathan); settled near Salem, Indiana. Ebenezer settled in Fredonia, Crawford County. Lewis H. was in Brown County, Ohio, in 1809; married Elizabeth Haskell Freenan, of Plymouth, Mass., 1818. Issue: 1. Job. 2. Freeman. 3. William. 4. Delilah Emma. Was Major-General Daniel Morgan of the American Army of this line? His descendant, Captain Daniel Morgan Taylor, Ordnance Department, U. S. A., writes that Gen. Morgan observed, to his death, the strictest reticence as to his own family. But he (Gen. Morgan) admitted that he was born in New Jersey in 1736, and it does not seem improbable that he was of this branch which settled in that State, which was descended from Charles of Newport.

The families of Miles Morgan in and around Springfield and Brimfield, in Massachusetts, and of James, in and around

New London, were plentiful and well to do; so, although there were undoubtedly emigrations from both Massachusetts and Connecticut to New Jersey, it is not probable that there were Morgans among them. Indeed, it would appear probable that no other family of the name being at present traceable, Gen. Morgan was a collateral, if not a lineal, descendant of Abel Morgan, the preacher.

The histories of Gen. Morgan assert that born in Hunterdon County, New Jersey in 1736. He removed to Virginia, and in 1755 joined Braddock's expedition as a wagoner, and received 500 lashes in 1756 for an alleged insult to a British officer. When tidings reached him of the outbreak of the war of the Revolution, he raised a company of riflemen, and marched at their head to Boston, where he joined Gen. Arnold's expedition against Canada. On the death of Montgomery at the siege of Quebec, Dec. 1, 1775, Gen. Arnold won command, and on his succumbing to a wound Captain Morgan took command, and was captured and obliged to surrender, a prisoner of war. In November, 1776, however, he was exchanged, and became colonel of a Virginia regiment of His ability in the field, especially in the Saratoga campaign, speedily won him the rank of brigadier-general, to which he was commissioned in 1786; and after the victory of Saratoga, at his own request, he was attached to the Southern Continental Army.

Marching to the point known as the Cow-pens, he met and defeated Gen. Tarleton, commanding an army of 7,000 British troops. Thence, however, Gen. Cornwallis, marching against him with largely superior numbers, he was able to escape him and rejoin Gen. Greene's main body. He was voted a gold medal by the Continental Congress for these achievements. He witnessed the close of the war, and was honorably discharged; but subsequently was called upon to suppress what was known as "the Whiskey Rebellion,", which was mainly confined to the territory now the State of Pennsylvania. He died February 14, 1802. Not his leaster title to distinction is that his corps of riflemen, with which he marched to join Washington before Cambridge, at the Revolution, were the first skirmishers known in the history of military science. Prior to that date, what is known as the "skirmish line" of an engaged army can be searched for in vain in military annals. When the British troops returned to Europe they carried with them the tradition of "Morgan's buckskin devils," and their tactics, and the use of skirmishers, so originated there.

V. NANCY, married Brevet-Col. Presley Neville, Virginia (L. Continental Infantry, aide-de-camp to Gen. Lafayette, afterwards same to Gen. Lincoln. Issue. 1. Emily Neville, Feb. 15, 1786.

VI. EMILY NEVILLE, married William Douglass Simms. And Issue: Virginia Neville Simms, born Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 2017, 1812. She married Frank Taylor. Issue: Daniel Morgan Taylor, captain Ordnance Dept., U. S. A.

Another probable grandson of Charles of Newport (though a native of Pennsylvania, in which State he was born in the year 1730), was Dr. John Morgan, a graduate of the College of Philadelphia. He studied medicine, being apprenticed to a Dr. John Redman of Philadelphia. 1755-9 he volunteered his services as surgeon in the Colonial Army raised in the French and Indian war. In 1760 he went to Europe, and studied his profession for five years, taking his degree at Edinburgh University; studied at Paris, and at Padua under John Baptist Morgagni. He began practice in Philadelphia in 1765, being described at that date as "M. D., F. R. S. London; Corresponding Member of the Royal Academy of Surgeons, at Paris; Member of the-Arcadian Belles Lettres Society, at Rome; Licentiate of the · Royal College of Physicians, in London and in Edinburgh: and Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine, in the College of Philadelphia." In 1776 he became Surgeon-General of the American Army and Director-General of NEW YORK

CHARLES MORGAN, son of William (16), b. Manlins, New York. November 6, 1834, graduated at West Point, and entered the army as brevet second lieutenant of artillery, 1857; served with the Army of the Potomac during the Civil War as chief of artillery of Third Corps, October, 1862, to May, 1863; was promoted to the rank of lieut,-colonel, and made inspector-general and chief of staff of that corps, and served in that capacity from January, 1863, to March, 1865. Subsequent promotions were to the rank of brevet brigadiergeneral. At the close of the war he was placed in command of the White River District of the Department of Arkansas. On being mustered out, in January, 1866, be received a commission as major of the Fourth Artillery, United States Regular Army. He died December 26, 1875.

CHARLES WILLIAM MORGAN, son of Simon, son of Daniel (III.), b. Virginia 1790; second lieutenant of United States frigate Constitution in the engagement between the Guerriere and the Java in 1812. Received a sword from the State of Virginia in commemoration of his services in that engagement. Commanded the Mediteranean squadron 1841 to 1843; died, Commodore, U. S. N., 1853.

George Washington Morgan, born in Pennsylvania 1820; served in the Texas war for independence in 1836; entered West Point in 1837. Raised a regiment in Ohio, which served, with himself as colonel, in the Mexican war, under Gen. Taylor. In 1847 he was commissioned colonel in the regular army, 15th Infantry, and served under Scott, For bravery at Contreras and Cherubusco, he was breveted brigadier general; U. S. Consul at Marseilles, 1885; Minister to Portugal, 1888. Commanded a division of the Army of the Ohio and of the Army of the Tennessee. Honorably discharged 1863. Member of Congress from Ohio, 1871–1875.

JAMES. D. MORGAN, son of William, b. Massachusetts 1810; captain in the Mexican war; lieutenant 7th Illinois at New Madrid and Corinth; brigadier-general in the Army of the Tennessee, 1862. Commanded division in Sherman's Army in the march to the sea.

JOHN H. MORGAN, son of William, b. Alabama in 1826; settled in Lexington, Kentucky, 1830. First lieutenant Marshall's Cavalry in the Mexican war; served at Buena Vista. He served in the army of the Southern Confederacy under General Buckner, at Shiloh, but organized a band of guerillas, with which he followed in the rear of the Union armies. and raided Kentucky, Indiana Ohio, destroying property wherever he could find He was captured on one occasion, and confined in the Ohio penitentiary, but escaped and continued his raids; was captured by Federal cavalry at Greenville, Tenn., in 1864, and was shot while attempting to escape. Owing to. the destruction of property and the incursions in southern Ohio, beyond the then actual seat of hostilities, the impression long prevailed that General Morgan was a lawless freebooter, and beyond the pale of military law. But calmer judgment has ascertained that he held a valid commission in the Confederate armies, and was acting strictly within the rules of war, which authorized his acts, and he received military honors as a gallant and fearless commander, who, had he lived, would have been entitled to accept the provisions of the general amnesty accorded to his comrades in arms at the surrender of the Confederacy.

BRANCH FROM MORGAN OF TREDEGAR.

A. (See XVI. 10, ante p. 16.)

Elizabeth, daughter of Sir William of Tredegar; married William Morgan, merchant of Diveru; went to Bristol, England, 1616. Elizabeth died 1638, William died 1648; both buried in Bristol. (See Great Orphan Book and Book of Wills of Bristol.) Issue: Miles Morgan, born named perhaps after Miles Morgan, captain British Army, who perished with Sir Humphrey Gilbert, half brother of Sir Walter Raleigh, who sailed, 1576, under a patent "to occupy any heathen lands not actually possessed of any Christian prince or people," The only other Miles, I find, is Miles Morgan Morgan, or Morgan Miles, son of William Miles, of Cabalya. The name is not otherwise given in Mr. Clark's huge work, which registers more than 40,000 Welsh Sailed from Bristol to Boston, January 1636, Even in that early day the spirit of exploration seems to have pervaded the Massachusetts colonists, and Col. William Pynchon, himself but recently arrived in Boston, moved by descriptions of the exceedingly fertile meadows of the "ox bows of the long river" (the compound curves which the Connecticut River makes in its low alluvial banks), picked a company, and set out for what is now western Massachusetts, following the Indian trails (or "Bay roads," or "Bay paths," as they were later called, because leading to Massachusetts Bay at Boston), the party passed westward, to the south of Worcester. Late researches have identified the present town of Brimfield, in Hampden County, as one of their resting places or camps. There is proof that two important Qualog villages were situated within the present limits of this town, before the time of its settlement by the Springfield planters, and the camp here is what probably induced the colony which left Springfield in 1701 (as hereafter to be narrated) to seek this town for a permanent settlement. The village of Ashquach was situated on Indian Hill, north of Sherman Pond, and contained the principal stronghold of the tribe, known as Quabog Old

SIR HENRY MORGAN.

Here King Philip, with a handful of followers, spent the night on his flight from Pocasset. This appears from reliable evidence, an important proof being a reference to it in a letter from Major John Pynchon to Governor Winthrop, This Indian town was located on one of of Connecticut. the great through trails from the Narragansett country to to the Connecticut River, which passed over the mountain north of "Steerage Rock." Another village lay in what is now East Brimfield, and occupied Indian Field Hill, now Jones Hill. It was included in the tract of 1,000 acres of land purchased of the Indians by Eliot. Here he probably intended to establish one of the "praying towns," by which he hoped to evangelize the Indians of Massachusetts, before the breaking out of King Philip's war changed the whole course of events. At any rate, this party must have followed the best defined Indian trails in their perilous journey, and the summit, Steerage Rock Mountain, which overlooks Brimfield town, and from which eighteen Massachusetts towns are visible to-day, is located as the spot where the Indians took their bearings in passing through the forests.

Of this party, MILES MORGAN, though the youngest, and the only pioneer admitted who was less than twenty-one years of age, soon became second in command. On reaching what is now the city of Springfield, he was at once and continually, as the scanty remaining records prove, assigned to positions of trust, and speedily became one of the most valued men in the colony, a brave and intrepid Indian fighter, a sturdy tiller of the fields, a wise counsellor in the government; and if, as Mr. Green notes, he was assigned, in the practical division of the sumptuary duties of the colony, the occupation of a butcher, when his farming operations permitted, he only exceeded in usefulness Colonel Pynchon himself, who acted as the grocer, as well as the leader, and the Justice of the Peace of the colony. Greene's "History of Springfield" gives the records as follows: Page 96. January, 1646, Miles Morgan and George Colton were commissioned 'to get a smith for ye town.'" Page 126.

"Miles Morgan and John Dumbleton were chosen in the place of Colton and Burt in the Board of Townsmen." Page 127, "But in 1663 the power to grant allotments was again taken from the selectmen and given to Captain Pynchon, Ensign Cooper, Benjamin Cooley, George Colton, Rowland Thomas, Miles Morgan and Ensign Holvoake, Page 95. ""Miles Morgan mentioned third in a list of taxpavers paving taxes on thirty-four and a-half acres of land." Page 98. "Francis Ball and Miles Morgan were surveyors for the upper part of the town." Page 116. "Mentioned as third in a list of those to whom land was apportioned in Recossie and Mill River," Page 132, "In 1669 Miles Morgan and Jonathan Burt were stationed in the meetinghouse, 'up in ve gallery, to give a check to disorders in youth and young men in tyme of God's worship. Dorchester to sit in ve guard seat for ve like end," The above was a very distinguished function in those days, when the highest duty of the colony was believed to be its religious duty. And, indeed, the relative dignity and importance of a colonist in early Massachusetts days could always be most safely inferred from the relative position given him in the meeting-house. So that, when Mr. Green quotes, on page 130, that Serg. Miles Morgan was given the third seat from the pulpit in the assignment of pews in the winter of 1663, he gives the proper rank of Miles Morgan in the Springfield colony.

The Pynchon-Morgan party called their settlement Agawam, which name it bore until 1640, when, for some unascertained reason, the name was changed to its present one of Springfield. The lands purchased by the Pynchon-Morgan pioneers included the present city of Springfield, and the towns of West Springfield, Wilbraham, Ludlow, and Longmeadow. Miles Morgan's allottment comprised the lands which are at present occupied by the car and repair shops of the Boston & Maine Railroad (formerly the Connecticut River Railroad). They remained in the family or, quit e two centuries before alienation.

MILES MORGAN OF SPRINGFIELD.
STATUE IN COURT SQUARF, SPRINGFIELD.

Mr. Titus Morgan, the first historian of the Miles Morgan family, and to whom the family's indebtedness will never be cancelled, preserves the story that Miles Morgan (Captain Miles Morgan as he soon began to be called), on his trip to America, had been attracted by a young English girl, Prudence Gilbert, perhaps a descendant of Sir Humphrey Gilbert, with whom the first Miles Morgan had sailed and perished, who had accompanied her parents to the New World on the same ship with himself (her parents ultimately settling in Beverley, now a suburb of Boston), and that, no sooner had he received his allotment of land, he started back on foot with an Indian guide, and met and married her, bringing her back also on foot, with a horse purchased in Beverley, and the Indian, both the horse and the Indian being loaded with Mrs. Morgan's household goods, and going before, while Captain Miles followed, with his matchlock, and with Mrs. Morgan at his side. The only variation of this story is that young Miles, wandering about the wharves at Bristol, fell in love with Miss Prudence Gilbert. as she was embarking, and determined to follow her to America, a project so hastily taken as to preclude the sending of any word to his parents before he himself embarked.

The town of Springfield was sacked and burned by Indians in King Philip's war in 1675. Col. Pynchon being absent, the command devolved upon Capt. Miles Morgan. Among the killed was Peleliah, Captain Miles's son, aged fifteen years. In a stockade built on Captain Morgan's land the houseless townsmen took refuge. A friendly Indian in Captain Morgan's employment escaped, however, and made his way to Hadley, where Major Samuel Appleton, commander-in-chief of the Massachusetts Bay troops in that war, happened to be at that time. Major Appleton was able to spare fourteen men, who arrived in time to save the lives of those surrounded in the stockade by dispersing the Indians and raising the siege.

MILES MORGAN, who is known on the old records interchangeably as "Sergeant Morgan" and as "Captain Morgan," and as "Miles of Springfield," survived his first wife, Prudence (who died November 14, 1660), by whom he had eight children. On February 15, 1669, he married Elizabeth Bliss, of Springfield, and by her had one son, Nathaniel. He died May 28, 1669. In 1879, two hundred and ten years after his death, the citizens of Springfield placed in their beautiful Court Square a statue to him and his virtues. It should have come earlier. Elizabeth, his second wife, survived him fourteen years, dying October 2, 1683.

LINE FROM MILES MORGAN, OF SPRINGFIELD,

I. JONATHAN, son of Jonathan (2 of H. above), married June 11, 1714, Hannah Smith.

II. David, son of David (2 of III. above), was one of twenty citizens of Springfield, who, February 12, 17co-1, signed a petition to Governor Stoughton setting forth that the lands were "falling short, and that any thoughts of such falling off being very afflictive to us, lest there should be a want of accommodations for our posterity to live comfortably thereon, the want thereof may enforce their removing (as well of some of ourselves) out of this province to such place where they may obtain land to live on." This petition (which is given in full on page of 239 Hyde's "History of of Brimfield"; see also page 23 of Vol. IV. of The American Monthly,) must have been accompanied by some indication of the desire of the petitioners as to locality, for Governor Stoughton, with the advice and consent of the Council, laid off the present township of Brimfield, about seventeen miles east of Springfield. As this was one of the resting places made by the Pynchon party in its pilgrimage from Boston to Springfield in 1636, it is inferred that the new emigration had selected it from memory or tradition of that pilgrimage. (The origin of the name "Brimfield" has been and still is matter of speculation.) Here a meeting house was built, and, in a distribution of the sittings therein, David Morgan was appointed first deacon. He received 120 acres of land and a sitting in the first pew, "on the men's side."

David (known as Deacon David in the Brimfield town records) married, in 1703, Deborah, daughter of Ephraim Colton. He died September 11, 1760. Issue: 1. David.
2. Joseph, b. Aug. 18, 1705. 3. Mary, b. 1706 (she married Leonard Hoar, Jr., May 6, 1736). 4. Elizabeth (married Phineas Sherman, Dec. 2, 1738) 5. Jonathan, b. 1740. 6. Keborah, b. 1742 (married Nathaniel Collins, 1763). 7. Mercy, b. 1744; died 1745. 8. Isaac, b. 1747.

III. Joseph, son of Deacon David; b. Aug. 19, 1705; died Jan. 28, 1798; married Margaret Cooley, December 25, 1729; she died July 17, 1754. Married (2) Rachel Dada; she died March 27, 1810. Issue: 1. Margaret, b. April 20, 1730 (married John Mighell, Feb. 2, 1749. 2. Joseph, Jr., b. April 17, 1733. 3. Mary, b. Feb. 8, 1735; died 1736. 4. Mary, b. June 15, 1737 (married Captain Ebenezer Hitchcock, May 7, 1761). 5. Benjamin, b. July 24, 1739. 6. Miriam, b. May 7, 1742. 7. David, b. Jan. 25, 1745. 8. Keziah, b. Jan. 26, 1747 (married Benjamin Cody, Dec. 31, 1767). 9. Aaron, b. March 16, 1749. 10. Elijah, b. May 31, 1758. 11. Enoch, b. Aug. 3, 1763. Joseph served as sergeant at the second siege of Louisberg.

IV. Jonathan, son of Deacon David; married Ruth Miller Feb. 26, 1745; died Jan. 1, 1796. Issue: Abuer, b. Jan. 9, 1746. 2. Jonathan, Jr., b. April 12, 1748. 3. Lois, b. April 15, 1750; married William Warriner, Oct. 10.

1776. 4. Ruth, Sept. 2, 1754; married Ebenezer Phillips, of Worcester, June 28, 1780.

A report of a committee to "seat the meeting house," dated September 12, 1727, says that they "have, according to the best of our judgment and cunning, done the same as followeth, etc.," and that they have, "Firstly, in the Pew next the Pulpit, on the East side thereof, we seated * * Deacon Morgan's wife." Isaac Morgan was, by this report, seated in the 11th pew, and Jonathan, Daniel, with Stephen, John, and Reuben, in the 14th, 18th, 20th, and 22d pews respectively.

In the French and Indian wars the Massachusetts archives record that Daniel and Jehiel enlisted in his Majesty's service on June 17, 1747. Reuben enlisted between Sept. 11 and Dec. 25, 1755; Jonathan, John and Joseph, between March 13 and Nov. 20, 1758; and Jonathan and Jehiel, between Feb. 14 and Dec. 16, 1760. In this latter enlistment, Jonathan was made first lieutenant of Capt. Trustrum Davis's company. Deacon David died Sept. 11, 1760.

V. ABNER MORGAN, son of Jonathan, and grandson of Deacon David, born, Brimfield, January 7, 1746; entered Harvard College in 1770, and was graduated there in 1773. During one of his vacations he visited Virginia, and was the guest of Peyton Randolph, and he seems to have been so impressed with the personality of Mr. Randolph that, in 1803, he named his only son Peyton Randolph, although twentyeight years had elapsed since Mr. Randolph's death. 1774, he was admitted Barrister-at-law at the Worcester Assizes, July 1, 1774, and receiving news of the "Boston Port Bill," he drew up a covenant, by which the citizens of Brimfield pledged themselves to import, purchase, sell, use, or consume, no goods, either produced in Great Britain or brought hither in British bottoms, or in any way owned by, or which had passed through the hands of a subject of Great Britain. To this document, the signing of which was high treason, he, with Jonathan, Jr., his brother, and with his cousins, David, Joseph, and John Morgan, Jr., and 183 other citizens of Brimfield, signed his name.

He was elected delegate to the General Court in 1775. July 19, 1775, the General Court met at Watertown, Boston being occupied by General Gage. The disaster at Quebec induced General Washington to send a requisition on the General Court for three regiments to reinforce the Army of the North. The General Court ordered one of these regiments to be raised in the counties of Berkshire and Hampshire, and appointed Mr. Elisha Porter, of Hadley, colonel, and Mr. Abner Morgan, major, Sunday, January 21, 1776 (see The American Monthly, vol. 6, page 22). His commission reads: "From the Council of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, at Watertown, the 22d day of January, in the sixteenth year of his Majesty King George the Third, A. D. 1776. Accompanying this commission was a letter of instruction from General Washington to Colonel Porter (see the Colonial Magazine, for October, 1895). The Diary of Colonel Porter, published in The Magazine of American History, vol. 30, page 185, records the marches of this regiment, its services through the terrible cold and sicknesses of the winter, and of Major Morgan's services with a brigade formed of a portion of the regiment and Pennsylvania and New Hampshire troops at Montreal, assigned to General Sullivan's command, and was promoted brigade-major. At Crown Point, July 8, 1776, he drew up a remonstrance of field officers to the removal of General Sullivan, and an address of affection and confidence to him. 19, 1777, he participated at the battles of Bemis Heights and Stillwater, and he was present at the surrender of Burgoyne, Oct. 17, 1777. At the disintegration of Gates's Army of the North, Major Morgan, with as many of the Fourth Massachusetts Continental troops as re-enlisted, with new levies raised by his personal efforts, was transferred to the command of General Greene, whose brigade formed part of Washington's army in the Jerseys. He was present at the battle of Springfield, New Jersey, June 23, 1780.

was honorably discharged, June 17, 1781, after five years and five months service. July 1, 1781, Governor Hancock commissioned him justice-of-the-peace "and the Quorum" for Hampden County. In 1782 he was appointed chairman of the Committee of Safety for taking up persons dangerous to the Commonwealth, under the Act of Feb. 14, 1781. In 1789 he was appointed assessor to levy the direct tax of $2,000,000 on the State of Massachusetts by the General Government. He was for twenty-two years successively chairman of the Board of Selectmen of Brimfield. He represented Brimfield in the General Court from 1789 to 1801. March 31, 1796, in his fifty-first year, he married Persis, daughter of his cousin, Sergeant David Morgan, of Captain Joseph Hoar's Company, of Colonel Gideon Burt's Company, who served to the close of the war. In 1783 he built the largest house in Brimfield, from timbers cut in his own saw-mills, and through the foundation walls introduced a rivulet, to lave a hollowedout rock in which to cool his wine, leading the rivulet around the rock and out again through an exit left in the ponderous masonry of the foundation walls. This house is standing in perfect condition, and the rivulet still running in 1896. On April 15, 1831, being then 86 years of age he received a bounty of 20,000 acres of land in Livingston County, Western New York, and a pension from the General Government. He removed to this estate, and resided for some years at Avon Springs. He died Nov. 7, 1837, aged or years and 8 months. He is buried in Forest Hill Cemetery, Lima, New York.

VI. BRIGADE-MAJOR ABNER-MORGAN married Persis, daughter of David, son of Joseph Morgan, March 31, 1796. Issue: 1. Harriet, b. Dec. 11, 1797; married (1) William P. CHARLES HILL MORGAN was born at Rochester, N. Y., January 8, 1831. He has been for more than twenty-five years eminent as a mechanical engineer, particularly in the wire-rod drawing and rolling industry, which is indebted to him very largely for its perfection in America to-day.

Mr. Morgan's first important improvement was a power reel, operated by the engine driving the mill; the second, the invention and construction of a continuous train of rolls, having only horizontal axes. The next improvement suggested by Mr. Morgan related to automatic reels, with a vertically moving platform. These reels were completed and a successful test made March 10, 1886, and patent applied for later in the same year. They are now in use. Later Mr. Morgan introduced a system of designing and constructing cam curves for looms. Mr. Morgan has not only borne a leading part in American mechanical achievements, but has been in many other ways a public benefactor, and the success of the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, one of the noblest institutions of the sort in the world. is largely due to his efforts. His constant oversight, his inventive genius and his great business capacity, have been constantly at the service of the school. Its machine shop has been entirely successful, and is now recognized everywhere as a most important and valuable part of the Institution. Its plan has been copied far and near.

Mr. Morgan is at present a resident of Worcester, Massachusetts, and president of the Morgan Construction Company, of that city.

XVIII. JUNIUS SPENCER MORGAN was born on April 14, 1813, in West Springfield, now Holvoke. He went to Hartford, Conn, with his father in 1817, entering the employ of Alfred Welles, of Boston, on April 7, 1829, remaining there until July, 1834. Vestryman of Christ Church from 1845 to 1849, and advisor of the Orphan Asylum, 1849-1853; a corporator of the Young Men's Institute, a trustee for two years, 1638 and 1840, and vice-president in 1839. A member of the Governor's Foot Guards from 1838 to 1841. In after years he retained an especial fondness for the city of Hartford, which witnessed his first strides in business transactions, and he gave it many tokens of his benevolence. He contributed liberally toward the free library, to Trinity College, and in 1886 he presented to the Hartford Orphan Asylum a contribution known as the Sarah Morgan fund, in honor of his mother, Sarah Spencer Morgan. institutions have been substantially benefited by his interest and liberality. In 1887 he gave to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in this city a large and valuable painting by Sir Joshua Reynolds He married, May 2, 1836, Juliet, daughter of the Rev. John Pierpont, of the Hollis Street Church, Bos-In 1834 he removed to New York city, and became a member of the firm of Morgan, Ketcham & Co. Returning to Hartford, he joined the firm of Howe, Mather & Co., afterwards Mather, Morgan & Co.; was later a member of the firm of J. M. Beebee, Morgan & Co., of Boston. In 1853 he entered the banking house of George Peabody & Co., and October 10, 1854, became a partner therein. In 1862 Mr. Peabody retired and the firm became J. S. Morgan & Co., and remained one of the leading banking institutions of the world for more than thirty years under that name. For thirty years, by his sterling ability and grasp of affairs, he remained a leader and a power, not only in London, but in the financial world. He died from injuries received in leaping from his carriage on the Riviera, April 8, 1890, at Monte Carlo, near the village of Eze. His remains were brought to Hartford and interred Few Americans have been more sincerely mourned. there. His issue were. 1. John Pierpont, born 17th April, 1837. Sarah Spencer, born 5th Dec., 1839; m. George H. Morgan, of New York city (of the line of Miles), 28th June. 1866. 3. Mary Lyman, born 5th Nov., 1844; m. Walter H. Burns, of New York city, 20th Jan., 1867, in London. Junius Spencer, 7r., born 6th April, 1846, died 1858. Juliet Pierpont, born 4th Dec., 1847.

NIX. John Pierpont Morgan, born Hartford, Conn., April 17, 1837. Was educated at the Boston High School and at Gottinger, Germany. He became attached to the banking house of Duncan, Sherman & Co., in New York city, in 1857. When his father, Junius S. Morgan, became the successor of the London house of George Peabody & Co., he established the firm of Dabney, Morgan & Co., as the American branch of his father's firm. During eleven years this banking house was a financial power in the country, to be surpassed only by its successor, Drexel, Morgan & Co. Early in his financial career Mr. Morgan felt that his line of operations best lav in not the field of wrecking and dividing the wreckage of great railway corporations, but in saving, rehabilitating and reorganizing them, and so adding to, instead of absorbing and withdrawing, one of the great sources of the wealth of the country. When the firm of Drexel, Morgan & Co. was established, the genius of Mr. Morgan began to assert itself to this end. The career of that firm is a history of prosperity won by devotion to the law merchant in its highest expression, and the successful application of the best and soundest commercial principles to the business opportunities of a great and growing country, Of the magnitude of the achievements of this firm and of its successor after January 1, 1894, the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., it taxes figures to express. The house has been associated with most of the great financial transactions of this country since the partnership was formed in 1871. Their first work of great national importance was that of the refunding of the Government debt, in August, 1876, at 4 1-2 per cent. The authorized issue of these bonds was $300,-000,000, and the syndicate agreed to take $40,000,000 at once at par in gold, less 1 per cent. commission, with an option on the balance to run until March 4, 1877. The issue was subsequently limited to $200,000,000, all of which passed through the hands of this house.

The house's operations included the placing of the Government 4s, of which they agreed to take $25,000,000 on June 9, 1877. On April 11, 1878, they took $10,000,000 of another issue of $50,000,000 4 1-2's. In the same year the house was a member of the syndicate which made the highest bid for the whole issue of $50,000,000 of bonds.

The influence of the firm in the railroad world has been farreaching in furthering constructive and conservative policies. The so-called "Gentlemen's Agreement," were due to his efforts, and it is not much to say that every important movement in the direction of securing stability in the railroad business of the country has either originated with Mr. Morgan or has had his strenuous support. On Dec. 15, 1890, the most important gathering of railroad and financial interests ever held in this country: the one above alluded to, met at Mr. Morgan's table, and resolutions prepared by him were carried by a vote of fifteen of the most important railroad companies of the United States. The contract thus entered into had for its object the promotion of harmony among the great railroad interests, and has always been known since as the "Gentlemen's Agreement."

In 1888 the firm reorganized and harmonized railroad interests involving more than $100,000,000, resulting in the rehabilitation of the Philadelphia & Reading and the Baltimore & Ohio railways, not to speak of the consolidation and capitalizing of the Edison and Thomson-Houston Electric Companies in the General Electric Company. In 1894 it successfully converted the series of properties known as Richmond Terminal into The Southern Railway Company. an achievement which involved twenty-six foreclosures and other sales. Other sales of the house have been: Louisville and Nashville, early issues (some $20,000,000), Boston and Maine ($8,000,000), New York Central system ($30.-000,000 or more), American Docks ($5,000,000), Chicago and Western Indiana ($10,000,000), Erie Terminal bonds, etc., (about $15,000,000), Pennsylvania system (over $25,-000,000), Lehigh Valley ($20,000,000), Terminal Railroad of St. Louis ($6,000,000), St. Paul and Northern Pacific ($10,000,000). In the Union Pacific reorganization more than $200,000,000 of securities were deposited with the firm. And in 1895-6 the firm added to all these the crowning achievement of coming to the rescue of the General Government and relieving the decline of the gold reserve by furnishing it with over $150,000,000 of gold. The list of Mr. Morgan's private charities would exhaust the capacity of the present volume.

General Thomas J Morgan (1 above), son of the Honorable and Reverend Lewis Morgan, was born in Franklin, Indiana, Aug. 17, 1839. After a preparatory course of study in the common schools, he entered Franklin College, and was about completing the senior year at the outbreak of the war, in April, 1861. At the first call for troops he enlisted as a private in the Seventh Indiana Infantry, and served for ninety days in Western Virginia, participating in the battle of Carrick's Ford. At the expiration of his term of service he spent a year as principal of the public schools in Atlanta, Ill. InAugust, 1862, in response to Lincoln's call for 300,000 men, he re-entered the service as first lieutenant in the 70th Indiana Infantry, Col, Benjamin Harrison. The friendship formed at that time between these two men has never been broken. He was made major, and authorized to recruit the Fourteenth Regiment of U. S. Colored Infantry. He was promoted to the rank of colonel. Subsequently Gen, Geo. H. Thomas directed him to organize and command the Forty-Second and Forty-fourth U. S. C. I., two additional regiments of negro troops, and the First Colored Brigade of the Army of the Cumberland.

During thirty days of Sherman's Atlanta campaign, May, 1864, he served as volunteer aid on the staff of Major-General O. O. Howard, then in command of the Fourth Army Corps, and participated in numerous heavy engagements, receiving from General Howard commendation for energy and "fearlessness in battle," and the credit of having "saved the army at Resaca." Returning to his own command, he participated in the subsequent campaigns under Thomas. At Dalton, Ga., he assisted in routing Wheeler's cavalry; at Pulaski, Tenn., he aided in checking and turning back Forrest's cavalry; at Decatur, Ala., at the head of his troops, he charged and captured a battery from Hood's army; and at Nashville, Tenn., December 14 and 13, 1864, at twenty-five years of age, in command of two brigades, one of white troops and one of colored troops, he opened the great battle, and for two days bore a conspicuous part in the crushing defeat that Thomas visited upon Hood's army. One horse was shot under him at Adairsville, Ga., a second at Nashville. For gallantry and meritorious services during the war he received the distinction of brevet Brigadier-General, being one of the youngest men in the service upon whom this honor was bestowed. In August, 1865, after a service of forty months, he resigned, and entered Rochester, N. Y., Theological Seminary, from which he graduated in 1868. He studied at the University of Leipsic, Germany. A. B., 1861; A. M., 1864; LL. D., 1884; Chicago University, D. and 1821 she essayed historical writing, and succeeded in creating genuine sensations by her "France Under the Bourbons" and "Italy," which appeared respectively in the last-named years.

LINE OF JAMES MORGAN, OF CONNECTICUT.

I. James Morgan (4 of I above), sailed from Bristo!, in the ship Mary, with a kinsman, ROBERT MOR-GAN (see line of ROBERT, post.), in the summer of the year 1636, and landed in Boston, Massachusetts Bay. Settled first at Sandy Bay, near Gloucester, on Cape Ann, but found the coast bleak and the Indians troublesome. He married in Roxbury, where his first child was born, May 18, 1642. Finding fertile and desirable plantations at the mouth of the river Thames, at New London, in Connecticut, he, with the Sandy Bay colony, headed by its pastor, Rev. Richard Bliman, removed and settled there in 1649. Here he was assigned, February 10, 1650, lands granted him, "on the path to New street, being six acres of upland where the wigwams are, in the path that goes from his house toward Culvers, among the Rocky Hills," (New street is now Ashcroft street, in the city of New London, but it was called "Cape Ann street," in honor of the Cape Ann colony, for more than a century). In 1661 he was one of a committee "to lay out the bounds of N. London on the east side of the Great River." In 1662 it is recorded , that "James Morgan, Mr. Tinker and Obiadiah Brown are chosen to seat the people in the meeting house, which they doing the inhabitants are to rest silent." In 1662 he is appointed one of a committee to contract to build a house for the ministry at New London, and signs himself "James Morgan, Senior, of New Lon-

V. EDWIN DENISON, (2 above), was b. in Washington, Berkshire County, Mass. He m. Aug. 1833, his cousin, Eliza Matilda Waterman, dau. of Lydia, (b. Morgan,) Waterman, (5 of Ill. above), of Hartford Conn. Issue: 1. Edwin Denison, b. Sept. 8, 1834; m. Jan. 5, 1854, Sarah Elizabeth Archer. 2. Frederick Avery, b. July 17, 1838; d. July 13, 1841. 3. Gilbert Henry, b. Jan 12, 1843; d. July 2, 1847. 4. Carolina Matilda, b. July 28, 1846; d. July 2, 1847. Alfred Waterman, b. Dec. 14, 1847; d. July 12, 1848. When a lad of thirteen, Edwin Denison, Sr., removed to Windsor, Conn. In the winter of 1826 he attended for one term at Bacon Academy, Colchester, This comprised all the school advantages he ever had. In 1828 he became a clerk in the wholesale grocery establishment of his uncle, Nathan, in Hartford; became a partner therein in 1831. In 1833 was chosen a member of the Common Council of the City of Hartford. 1836 removed to New York City and began business there as a merchant in the same line as in the Hartford firm. He was an Alderman of the city in 1840; was elected to the New York State Senate in that year and reelected in 1851. From 1851 to 1855 was Emigration Commissioner of the city of New York; was Vice-President of the the first National Republican convention at Pittsburg which nominated Freemont and Dayton. At this convention he was chosen chairman of the National Republican Committee and held that position until In 1858 he was elected Governor of the State of New York and re-elected in 1860. He became, and is, and always will be, illustrious in history as the "Great War Governor" who sent to the front over 125 000 soldiers. For his eminent services to the cause of the Union was commissioned as Major General of Volunteers by President Lincoln, but he declined the pay which went with that commission, while accepting the command of the military department of New York. 1863 he was elected United States Senator; remained in the Senate until 1860. He twice declined the Secretaryship of the Treasury, having been tendered that appointment by Presidents Lincoln and Arthur, respectively. He d. in New York City February 14, 1883. In his lifetime he presented the sum of $250,000 to the Union Theological Seminary in New York and to William's College, Mass., and by his will bequeathed $800,000 to charities and religious uses. In the Senate and every where, Gov. Morgan was known as "the great silent man," and in all the councils of his party, while others discussed, all awaited his nod to decide their discussions. Of all the splendid roster of Morgans who since before the days of Elizabeth have filled highest posts in their country's armles and navies, senates and councils, in commerce economics and affairs, none have added more lustre to the name than Governor Edwin Dennison Morgan of New York. And when it is remembered that there is scarcely a date in English history since the days of Henry V, when one or more of the name have not represented it in all the above enumerated services, this is high praise, and praise not confined to the pages of a genealogical register!

LINE FROM ROBERT MORGAN, OF BEVERLEY, MASS.

ROBERT MORGAN, (3 of XVI. p. 20 above), sailed for Plymouth, Mass., in the ship Fortune, arriving there in 1621. As he does not share in the division of cattle there in 1627, he probably had left Plymouth prior to that date. But in 1630 he took from Robert Vinee, of Plymouth, (agent of Richard and John Oldham, who had taken a grant of lands at the mouth of the Saco River—in what is now the State of Maine), lands in the Saco Colony. His name appears as holding lands in that colony in 1630. But the Oldhams preferred giving only long leases through Vine, and to this Robert Morgan objected. He therefore abandoned his holdings in 1636 and went to Salem, Mass, where he purchased lands in what is now Beverley. He is en-

V. SIR JAMES MORGAN, 4th Baronet of Llantarnam, (2 of III. above), m. (1st) widow Ann Hopton Jones, of Canon-Frome; m. (2nd) Lady Alice Hopton, of Canon-Frome, cousin of first wife. Issue (1st wife): 1. Edward, d. infancy. (By 2nd wife): 2. Sarah. 3. William, d. infancy. 4. Edward. Sir James is buried at Stowell, County Gloucester. All the Baronets of Llantarnam were non-jurors and adhered to the old religion, with all their resources. They were continually suffering sequestration by Parliament, of their estates, but managed to retain them by frequent compoundings, the largest being for f,1,007, paid by the second Sir Edward in 1666, when Parliament sequestered Pencoyd Castle, but permitted retention of Llantarnam Abbey, from which the title was derived. All the Baronets sheltered priests; and, when Llantarnam Abbey passed to the Blewetts, (Lady Frances being declared eventual heiress of Sir James), and was restored by them, many "priest holes" where priests had been concealed from the soldiers, were discovered. Sarah, the oldest daughter, m. Stephen Bazelee or Beasley, a Baptist, joined her husband's faith and was expelled from her home, in consequence. She sailed with her husband for America, accompanied by her youngest brother Edward (or, perhaps, he joined her afterwards in Philadelphia, VI. below,)

Meanwhile, Sir James and her brother William had died, and Frances. daughter of the 3rd Edward, became eventual heiress, there being no contest from the American emigrants. It is probable, however, that Sarah Williams visited England on business connected with the succession, as we find, on the Records of Pennypack Church, in Philadelphia, these enteries: "1727—Sarah Williams dismissed to Old England;" "1733-Sarah Williams returned from London," (See also Burke's Extinct Baronetages.) Stephen Beasley and Sarah, his wife, went to Philadelphia, Pai, where he d. Jan. 4, 1749. Both are buried in one grave in the Baptist burying ground in La Grange Place. Philadelphia, according to an entry in the bible of Richard Morrey. Esq. Stephen Beasley was a ship-builder in Swanson Street, Phila-During the Revolution he was Captain of guard-boat "Viper," of the Penna. State Fleet, participated in all the battles in defense of the Delaware approaches to Philadelphia, remaining in the naval service till 1780. He made several voyages to Europe in his own ships. The children of Stephen and Sarah Beasley (which is also found in Philadelphia records spelled "Beaslee," "Bazellee," "Bezle" and "Besley") were: 1. Sarah, who m. (1st) 1721. Thomas Williams; m. POSTSCRIPT.

All the lines given in the body of this work, are those of TREDE-GAR, (such local names as Rhymny, Llantarnam, etc., being for identification only,) and it is believed that from the descents traced herein, always more or less in skeleton, down to the commencement of the twentieth century, by mention of the more prominent descendents; every American line or branch of the Morgan family which, existed in this country in the thirteen original States and the Western Reserve, can substantiate itself. The Tredegar Morgans, however, had a still more remote pedigree on the female side, and so our line is really entitled not only to begin itself where we began this work, following Mr. George T. Clark's Limbus Patrum Morganiae et Glamorganiae, with Cadivor Vahr, A. D., 1089, but back from the year 1089, twenty generations, or nearly five hundred years earlier; thus:

- 1. GWYNEDD, Cymric King, A. D., 605, had son and successor, 1. Cadwalon, A. D., 640.
 - 11. CADWALON, (1 of 1 above,) A. D. 740, had son Cadwalader
- III. CADWALADER, (1 of II above) surnamed "The Great," "The Blessed" was captured by the Romans and carried captive to Rome A. D., 680, where he flied in that year. Merlin's prophecy was that "Cadwalader, the blessed, would return after many days and drive the cursed Saxon from the land," had son 1. Edward, 660.
- IV. EDWARD (t of III above,) took possession of Wales on capture of Cadwalader, escaped the Roman yoke, and ruled as King of all Wales, dying A. D. 690, leaving the crown to his son, I. Rodri.
- V. RODRI, King of all Wales, (1 of IV above.) had daughter, 1. Esplit At death of King Rodri he left the crown of South Wales to a daughter who married Medric, a Lord of Cardigan, and crown of North Wales to his daughter Esplit.
- VI ESYLLT, Queen of South Wales, (1 of V above,) A. D. 843, m. Merryn Vrych, descended from a long line of royal ancestors. King of Powls, A. D. 819. Their issue was 1. Rhadri Mawr, oldest son, who became by his marriage also King of North Wales.

VII. RHADRI MAWR. (1 of Labove,) d. 876 (slain,) m. Angharad, dau, of Medric, Lord of Cardigan, heiress of the Kingdom of South Wales. Issue: Mergen Maur ap Rhadri, King of Powis, by succession from his father: 2. Cadell ap Rhadri Mawr, King of South Wales, by succession from his mother.

VIII. MERVYN MAWR ap RHADRI, (1 of VII above,) King of Powis; m. and had issue: 1. Liwelen ap Morgan.

IX. CADEL ap RHADRI MAWR, (2 of VII above,) King of South Wales. On the death of his brother, ignored or conquered the rights of Llewelen (1 of IX above,) and took possession of the Kingdom of Powis. At the death of his mother, Esyllt, he became also King of North Wales; d. A. D. 907. Issue: 1. Howell Dha ap Cadell.

X. HOWELL DHA ap CADELL, (r of IX above,) King of all Wales—Surnamed the "good;" celebrated as the Justitian of Cambria; instituted trial by jury of twelve men and a judge who should be as "Christ with the twelve Apostles," d. A. D. 946, Issue: 1. Owen ap Howell Dha. Other brothers took respectively the Kingdoms of Powis and North Wales, A. D. 950.

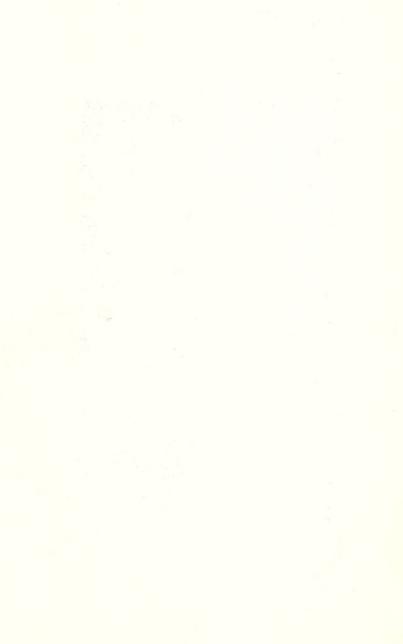

XI OWEN ap HOWELL DHA, (1 of X above,) King of South Wales; m. Angharod Vrich Llewelen Verch, Queen of Powis, dau, of Llewelen, (1 of III above,) to settle claims of her father to the throne of Powis; d. 987. Issue: 1. Einon ap Owen

XII. EINON ap OWEN, (1 of XI above,) d. A. D. 983; m. Ellinor, dau. of Gwenston ap Greathroed Vawr, a noble of Powis. Issue: Tudor Mawr, of Einon, became King of South Wales, d. (slain.) A. D. . 992. Issue: 1. Rbrs ap Tudor Mawr.

XIII. RHYS ap TUDOR MAWR, (1 of XII above,) was restored A. D. 1077, to his heriditary crown of South Wales and became the founder of the Third Royal Tribe. Issue: 1. Griffith ap Tudor Mawr.

XIV. GRIFFITH ap TUDOR MAWR, (1 of XIII above,) King of South Wales, m. Gwenilian, dau. of Griffith ap Conan. Issue: 1.

Rhys ap Griffith.

(Appendix A.)

XV. RHYS ap GRIFFITH, (1 of XIV above,) King of South Wales, d. May A. D. 1191, m. Gwenilian, dau. of Meda ap Meredith. Prince of Powis. Issue: Meredith ap Rhys, (third son.)

Mr. Clark, in the very interesting remarks prefatory to his Limbus Patrum Morganiae et Morganiae, notices the painful unintelligibility of the great majority of Welsh pedigrees, arising not only from the absence of surnames and the constant repetition of a very limited number of given names, but from the extraordinary jargon in which these pedigrees are written. (He notes that in Lewis Dunn's "Visitation of Wales," printed in 1586 and 1613, "Dustus, or Pies, or Cwywn," stands for "Justice of the Peace and of the Quorum," and "Seds Redchi ett ledchi," for the motto, "Cedo Regi et Legi.") "It is but rarely," says Mr. Clarke, "that a date is given or a family estate named. and although the mss. agree in the main, they often differ as to the wives and the names of the younger children. He, however, adds (what will be a gratification to the subscribers to this Family History, where only the various lines of Tredegar are followed.) "To the Morgans of Tredegar belongs the rare distinction of having been careful of their family records. Their testaments, leases, registers of birth, marrlage and death, post mortem inquisitions, and family pictures, have been mostly well preserved, and the Court Rolls of Abergavenny and other Monmouthshire manors have been carefully examined by the late Mr. Wakeman, and found to support the received pedigree of the family."

The present work is the first attempt to give anything like a complete account of the various American families of Morgan. Indeed, Titus Morgan's manuscript history of the line of Miles, (Middletown, Connecticut, 1800.) and Nathaniel H. Morgan's volume, "A History of James Morgan, of New London, and his descendants," (Hartford, Conn., 1860.) are all the American works. I have had to assist me. All the other data I have laboriously collected, in ten years, from correspondence, parish and legal records, epit iphs; etc., etc. The mss. of the work, however, had been entirely completed in April, 1800, and sent to the printer, when I was stupefied by a notice from the assignee of the printing house in whose safe all mss, beyond the printed page 110 was lodged, together with about 40 blocks for portraits, that said printing house, safe and all - found empty-had been sold under the hammer, the legal prior notice to the publishers of this work having, it seems, miscarried. The blow, at first, seemed insurmountable, and an excuse for abandoning the work which I believe my kind subscribers and kinsmen would not have refused to ac: cept. However, in a period of health which succeeded my long sick-.ness of 1896-'00. I preferred to re-collect the material, (I having, fortunately, preserved my memoranda of sources of information.) and I was able to do so between April. 1809, and December, 1900, And I beg here. to thank my subscribers for their patient kindness in a second time answering my tedious questions and correcting my errors,

APPLETON MORGAN.

GEN. DANIEL MORGAN.
(Appendix A.)

Was Major General Daniel Morgan, of the Revolutionary Army, 13 of the line of Charles of Newport.

Several months after editing the above page, I believed myself to have discovered what might prove to be evidence that Major General Morgan was the son of the Rev. Joseph Morgan, (1 of IV, p. 109 above,) and so of the line of James of New London. On submitting this evidence to Major Daniel Morgan Taylor, U. S. A. (2 of VI, page 35 above,) great-great-grandson of the General, he wrote me that he was strongly inclined to believe my discovery to be an actual solution of the mystery of General Morgan's parentage. With his concurrence I reproduce that evidence here, as follows:

It is a fair assumption that General Morgan's unconquerable reticence as to his parents could only mean that he still smarted under some injured pride or sense of injustice in their treatment of him, or had been driven from his home by them. Major Taylor says that Gen. Morgan, however, did repeatedly say, in answer to constant calls upon him for his biography, "I was born in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, in 1736," but would, under no importunity, go further than that. Now, in 1828, a fire destroyed the county buildings and several churches at Flemington, New Jersey, the capital of Hunterdon County, aforesaid, and with them substantially all such county and parish records as might been profitably searched for entries which might have recorded births in that county. But in a search among the preserves of the New Jersey Historical Society, I found it stated that upon a farm once owned by a Major Dusenbury, near Perryville, a small-hamlet in Hunterdon County, there were still visible, in 1876, the remains of the fireplace and chimney of a house, (which was probably of logs or hewn wood, and of the humblest description,) and that tradition, in the neighborhood, held independently, certainly of Gen. Morgan's assertion as to his family (of which the rustic neighborhood, unlettered and uninterested in current events, could scarcely have heard,) that this was all that remained of the house in which Gen. Morgan, of the Revolution was born. The tradition further stated that at about the age of fourteen or fifteen, young Daniel ran away from home, found his way to Pittston, not far from the Perrvville aforesaid, a settlement in the same county, (which only contained, in 1843, about a century later, two stores, a grist mill, and twelve or fifteen dwellings,) where he found employment in driving a wagon for a country store, for how long a period is not, of course, known.

Graham, who wrote a life of General Morg in, says that in Roger's Biographical Dictionary, (a work I cannot find,) it is stated that young Morgan travelled southward through Pennsylvania, on foot, in 1753 when seventeen years of age, and that he found employment, still as a wagoner, in Carlisle, in that State. From Carlisle he travelled to Charlestown, Berkley (then Jefferson) county, Virginia, where he found employment in a saw-mill owned by a Mr. Roberts. Thence he went to Frederick County, Virginia, where a Mr. Ashley, steward to a Mr. Nathaniel Burwell, gave him employment as a wagoner in the Shenandoah Valley. He was also employed by a Mr. Ballantyne, owner of a plantation on Opequon Creek until, having saved money enough to purchase a wagon of his own, he hired himself to the army of Gen. Braddock, after which his history became part of the imperishable history of his country.

Gen. Morgan's own authoritative statement that he was born in Hunterdon County. New Jersey, of course sweeps away the various other accounts, such as that given[with great succinctness by Gen. W. H. H. Davis in his History of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, (Doylestown, Penna. 1876, page 651,) which proceeds to locate Gen. Morgan's birth place by a flat stone on the Easton road and a man then living who remembers its history, etc., etc.; that he was a brother of Zackwell (3 of II, page 245 above,) or that he was of the line of Charles of Newport, (Magazine of American History, vol. XVII, page 524,) and so on. All of these accounts assign Gen. Morgan's reluctance to speak of his parentage to the fact that his parents were Quakers who would not have approved of his military career. Disposing of this, we have now to submit the following circumstantial evidence tending to place Gen. Morgan in the line of James of New London, to wit:

Speaking of Rev. Joseph Morgan (I of IV, page 109 above,) Mr. N. H. Morgan, (History of James Morgan and his Descendants, from 1007 to 1869, Hartford, 1869,) says (page 35,) "efforts have been made by several others as well as myself to trace the history of Rev. Joseph Morgan to its close, and a further account of his posterity, but without success." it is developed by further research, however, that that history is as follows:

Joseph Morgan, above, born Nov. 6, 1671, was the son of Lieut. Joseph, and grandson of James, a first settler of New London and was a Presbyterian clergyman. He was not, perhaps, a regular graduate. For, thoug this name stands on the catalogue of Yale College for the year 1702, in the History of Greenwich, Connecticut, he is recorded as, in 1697, settled over Greenwich First Church, whence he took lefters of dismissal and became pastor of Greenwich Second Church, in 1700. He had been at that time also a preacher in Bedford, West chester County, New York, in 1699. His regular ordination was by the Fairfield (Connecticut) Association, in 1700. But in Greenwich' he seems to have had some trouble with his flock, owing apparently to his rather too latitudinarian ideas as to social privileges, and summarily resigned his pastorate of the Second Church in Greenwich in 1708, and left the town and the State as well. Where did he go? It seems he went to Monmouth County, New Jersey, attracted by the fame of, and perhaps, expecting to find kinsmen among the Monmouth County Morgans. (See above, pages 31-32.)

At any rate, we find him, in 1609, settled as pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Freehold, Monmouth County, New Jersey. In the Archives of New Jersey, vol. XI, page 132, there is an account of the hanging of an Indian Chief named Wegualla, for murder. On being asked, on the gibbet, If any of the ministers present should pray with him, he indifferently answered "Yes, If they would." And being asked which of them, he named "Mr. Morgan, a Presbyterian minister, because he was his neighbor." The editor of the Archives states that this was a Rev. Joseph Morgan who came from New England. He here again fell into question. He was charged before the Synod with "practicing astrology, countenancing promiscuous dancing and transgressing in drink." But, on an ecclesiastical trial, these charges were not sustained. He resigned, however, and, journeying southward, took charge of two churches, one at Hopewell and the other at Maidenhead, (now Lawrence,) New Jersey; but, in 1736, the year in which, as we have seen, Gen. Daniel Morgan declares that he was born, the Rev. Joseph was again charged with intemperance, etc., and was driven from his cures and ministry at Hopewell and Maidenhead. It is recorded, however, that he was in 1738, "restored to the ministry on the Intercession of many good people." Here records cease, and conjectures take their place. But I believe, from several dovetailing indiciawhich there is no space here to follow in detail, that this Rev. Joseph Morgan passed into Hunterdon County (which adjoins Cumberland County, in which is Hopewell), and that, his wife dying there, he married again; and that on account of quarrels with, or possibly illtreatment from his step-mother, in which his father took the part of the new wife, young Daniel left his home forever.

If, therefore, the Rev. Joseph Morgan, (never a man of means, and losing all his cures through divers vicissitudes,) came to poor estate; and, with his second wife, drifted when the tuture patriot General was of tender years, to live in a house on the Dusenberry farm, near Perryville, it may have been that res angustá domí and an unkind stepmother, drove the future soldier to Pittstown, to Virginia and to the destiny his country knows by heart.

This Rev. Joseph Morgan had one son born in Greenwich, Connecticut, the year of his taking his B. A. at Yale College, 1702; who, also named Joseph, died November 28th, at Freehold, New Jersey, the same year that he, too, was graduated at Yale College. His father preached his son's funeral sermon, entitled, "A Discourse at Freehold, in New Jersey, Upon the Sorrowful Occasion of the Death of the Young and very Hopeful Joseph Morgan, of Yale College, B. A., who departed this life the 28th of November, 1723. This pamphlet he sent to be printed in pamphlet at New London, by Samuel Green, and a copy is (or was) in the New London Public Library. Besides this son, the Rev. Joseph had two others, one born at Greenwich, 'Conn., 1705; and the other at Freehold, Monmouth County, New Jersey, in 1711. These the present writer is unable to trace. The Rev. Joseph Morgan wrote and printed many sermons beside the mortuary one above given. to a Railer against the Doctrine of Election", appeared in 1724; "Sin its own Punishment," in 1728; and another, "Love to our Neighbors" appeared in a third edition, in 1749, after his restoration to the ministry, and its republication perhaps suggested by that occurrence. (It was originally published in Boston in 1740 as appears from the following advertisement in the Boston Weekly Post Boy of Aug. 8, 1740. "Just published for, and to be sold by Obadiah Cookson at the Cross-"Pistols, in Fish street, Boston, a sermon much approved of, entitled, "Love to our Neighbour, preach'd at Freehold, in the Jersies, by Jos. "eph Morgan, A. M.; Price 6 £ per hundred, if for gifts 18s. per dozen, "and 25 single, said Crookson also sells Grocery, Braizery and Cut-"lery Wares, and a rich Assortment of English and India Goods, by "Wholesale or Retale at moderate Rates.")

FREDERICK W. MORGAN.

In letters dated Freehold in 1721 and 1722, Dr. Joseph Morgan speaks of his two sons, of the ages of seventeen and eleven respectively, as "good scholars," and of one other son, a little older, perhaps the one whose death is mentioned above.

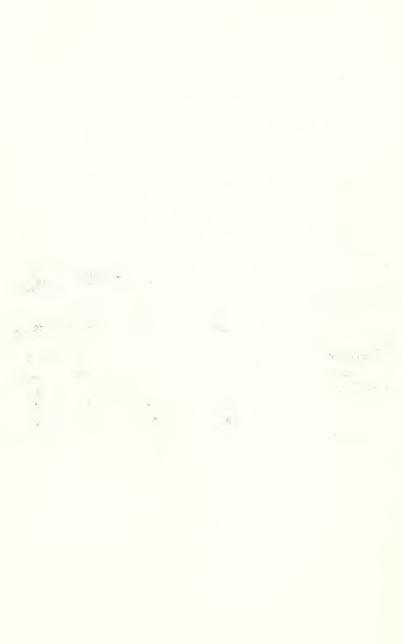

So much for possibility: now, as to what seems like corroboration: While tracing the line of Dr. Consider Morgan (ante, page 122) his descendant, Hon. Daniel H. Morgan (5 of IV, page 124 ante) who, of course, knew nothing of my theories as to Gen. Daniel Morgan's New England extraction, or anything of my work, except that he had received one of my circulars concerning the plan of my book) wrote me a etter concerning his own ancestry. In It he mentione I that a tradition preserved in his family was that his grandfather, Surgeon Isaac Mosely Morgan, when in the Revolutionary service, met Gen. Daniel Morgan, and that, on comparing notes, the two "found that they were cousins." If this is the fact, and if on that occasion, for once, Gen. Daniel Morgan overcame his repugnance to talking of his family line then Gen. Daniel (granted his being a son of the Rev. Joseph) was right. For, by referring to the lines from James, of New London, Gen. Daniel Morgan and Surgeon Isaac Mosely Morgan were actually second-third cousins!

It would seem, the above being veritable, that one of the brothers of General Daniel married and remained in the lowly house near Perryville, after the death of Rev Joseph. For Mr. Graham mentions a story that "once, during Washington's first campaign in the Jerseys, Gen. Daniel took leave of absence and wer't to visit his brother." "During the visit," says Mr. Graham, "Gen. Morgan slept on the bare floor, his brother having but one bed in the house, which the general refused to occupy on account of the indisposition of his sister-in-law. He offered his brother a good farm if he would remove with him into Virginia, which from strong local attachment, his brother declined."

Graham adds, "We have looked around in vain for a confirmation of this story. If correct, the brother must have died soon afterwards, or the fact of his existence would have become generally known, as was everything else in relation to Gen. Morgan subsequent to his brilliant exploits in the Revolutionary War."

In close relation to the above, is the discovery (and this is beyond conjecture) that the Confederate General and Cavalry leader, John Hunt Morgan, erroneously entered at page 39, ante, as a son of William, proves to be of Connecticut lineage and a direct descendant of of James, of New London.) On page 137 of Mr. N. H. Morgan's History of the Family of James (Morgan,) just cited, he makes the entry, "Gideon went to Virginia near Petersburg; no trace. But this Gideon is the Gideon (3 of XIII, p. 158 above) and, by following this line, we find the Confederate General properly given 3 of XVIII, page 162 above. So that, from the line of James appears to have come two famous fighters whose career and tactics were by no means dissimilar in energy, dash and accomplishment. Gen. Basil W. Duke, In his work, "His ory of Morgan's Cavalry," (Louisville, 1884) comments upon this similarity, and if our conjectures above are correct, made an assertion nearer the truth that he, himself, guessed, when he says (page 18) that "Gen. Morgan's father. Calvin C. Morgan, a native of Virginia, was a distant relative of Gen. Daniel Morgan, of Revolutionary fame."

PHILADELPHIA, Jany. 17th, 1795.

SIR: Your letter of the 26th of Novr. came safe (but not expeditiously) to hand.

I hope Col. Cannon has long ere this surrendered to you all the papers respecting my business which are in his possession, together with a full and complete statement of what is due to me from the tenants, or from himself, up to the point of your taking the management of it yourself, and that you will be able, without further procrastination or difficulty, to collect the amount of whatever may be found due me from both. As I am more inclined to sell than to rent the land. I hold on the western waters, and giving leases, although for a *hort term, may be a hinderance to the former, I would have you rent from year to year only.

I have no doubt of obtaining what I ask for the tract in Washing ton County (giving credit) viz: four dollars an acre: the number of full-handed immigrants that are pouring into this country from all quarters, owing to the disturbed state of Europe, and the quantity of money brought by them, and sent over by others, to be invested in lands, have given an astonishing start to the price of this article.

If therefore, I do not sell soon on the terms just mentioned, I shall rules my price.

If I do not sell my land on the Ohio and Gr at Kanawha in a lump, or at least by whole tracts, they will not be sold at all by me.

These will fetch me fifty per cent, more at this time than 1 would have sold them for two years ago. 1 am, sir,

Your very lible, servant,

MR. CHARLES MORGAN.

GO. WASHINGTON.

APPENDIX C.

Copy of the commission of Major Abner Morgan (V, page 51 above). One of the earliest commissions ever issued for service in what was supposed to be a war against Ministerial Tyranny, and not against the King in one of whose regnal years it was dated. The regiment of which Elisha Porter was Colonel and Abner Morgan was Major, was allocuted as the "First Regiment of Massachusetts Provincials," until July 4, 1776; after which it was known as the "First Massachusetts Regiment of the Continental Line." An order of Gen. Gates commanding the Northern Army, dated Headquarters, July 20th, 1776, brigading that army, orders that the first brigade commanded by Major General Arnold shall consist of Roads', Greaton's, Runnill's and Porter's Regiments.

APPENDIX D.

The impressive monument to William Morgan at Batavia, New York, bears this inscription:

Sacred to the memory of
W. Morgan,
A native of Virginia,
A Captain in the War of 1812,
A respectable citizen of Batavia and a martyr
To the Freedom of Writing, Speaking and Printing the Truth. He was abducted from near this spot in the year 1825, by Freemasons and murdered for revealing the secrets of that order.

A minute account of the abduction is given in Thurlow Weed's Autobiography (New York 1883, 1 pp. 216 298.) The excitement it caused became political, and raged for three years, and in sixteen States of the Union. A president of the United States having been very nearly elected on the sole platform of anti-masonry. It is certain at this day that the abduction was never ordered or endorsed by any lodge of Freemasons, but was the unauthorized act, if at all, of overzealous personal responsibility. William Morgan was born at Culpepper Court House, Virginia, in 1776, and is said to have been a private in Jackson's army at New Orleans, and later a brewer in Toronto, Canada. The title of Captain in the inscription is complimentary. We are unable to trace him to any of the lines given in this book.

Inscription on the tomb of Thomas Basset, of Beaupre, in the church yard at Moncton Combe:

"William Basset died Murch 10, 1586, aged 80 years. Katherine Basset died March 10, 1593, age 180 years.

> ' Filia Ricei Mansell equi is Katherina Bassitti hic conjunx armigeri, e patria es, Bewperium domus est, et quo jacet ille sepultus Rex Britonum Morgan nasceris ipsa loco.

"Annus erat vita decies octavus, et iste

Quos ut juxit amor juvenes, sic juxit utrosque
Annorum numero mors violanta senes.

"Junior illa Juit septem cum nuberçt annis, Septem annos vidua et tacta coeva vim, Conjugium actatismagnum par tempus habebant, Vita ambo et mortis par fuit ipsa dies."

"Thomas Leyson posuit."

APPENDIX F.

The derivation of the word MORGAN from Muir, sea, and gin, begotten, appears to be not the only one offered. Other authorities have derived it from Muir, (or mor) sea, and cant, an edge or brink "which is certainly characteristic of the situation of the Gla Morgan country." (Beauties of England and Wales. XVIII, p. 542.) It is also found spelled MAR-GAN, (as in the case of Margan Abbey.) GAM was also a Welsh surname, as Sir Morgan Gam ap Morgan of Avon ap Cradoc ap Testyn, whose brother, Sir Davy Gam, Shakespeare mentions (Henry he Fifth, IV viii, 104) as killed at Agincourt. The catch runs:

"DAVYDD GAM, llingham, artbenneg - golesg Gelyn, Richard Frenin; Llwyn y traws y diawl an ol olwyn, E'aswy awhaeth deg fys anei dyn."

Which is translated:

"Chief of all crooked forms was DAVID GAM,
Though feebly he bicker'd
'Gainst royal Richard,
Stoutly he struck and doubled up the fiend.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The index of this volume will be sent you immediately.

By keeping all illustrations after page 110 on right hand pages the binders will find pagination all right, throughout the volume.

In binding we suggest that the work be interleaved, and margins left untrimmed. This will minimize the unfortunate error by which pages 1-18 were trimmed and make an acceptable volume.

As since page 110, only 400 copies, (instead of 500 as projected at the commencement of this work in 1890,) have been printed, please note that however numbered, only 400 copies of this work are in existence. We have no odd or lose sheets, having destroyed all such.

We have executed several chart pedigrees for our subscribers, on heavy parchment vellum, size 19x25, (the largest sheet procurable.) The lettering in the Tudor style, the line of Welsh Kings engrossed in red with pure gold capitals; the English lines in black with red capitals, and the American lines in black, making thandsome heirloom. The title engrossed in pure gold, pointed and burnished. Beginning with the line from Gwenedd, A. D., 605, as on page 246, to which date every person entered in Dr. Morgan's worl, is entitled to trace. We are prepared to execute others as ordered. Price $100, of which $50 should invariably accompany the order.

THE SHAKESPEARE PRESS, Westfield, Union County, New Jersey.

N. B. We have a few copies of the photograph of the arms renaining at $2.75—the negative having been destroyed.

A splendid blazon of these arms on vellum, about 20x9 inches an be executed for $25.00. To subscribers returning their photographs, $22.25.

 $m_{\sigma}(2) = \epsilon$ · · Dear Sir or Madame of the Morgan Name

You are aware that during the years 1890—1897 there was issued, in monthly parts, Dr. Appleton Morgan's GENEALOGICAL HISTORY OF THE FAMILY OF MORGAN FROM THE YEAR A. D. 605 TO PRESENT TIMES. Its HERALDIC HISTORY: WITH BLAZONS OF THE MORGAN ARMS and PORTRAITS OF REPRESENTATIVE ANCESTORS AND DESCENDANTS.

This work traced all lines of Morgan which, at the year 1800 or since that date had representatives in the United States (to the number of sixty-five,) and, excepting Mr. G. T. Clarke's Limbus Morganiae et Glamorganaie (1867) which traced only Welsh and British Families, and Mr. N. H. Morgan's Genealogy of the Family of James Morgan (1635) of New London (1869) was the only Morgan Genealogy ever prepared-

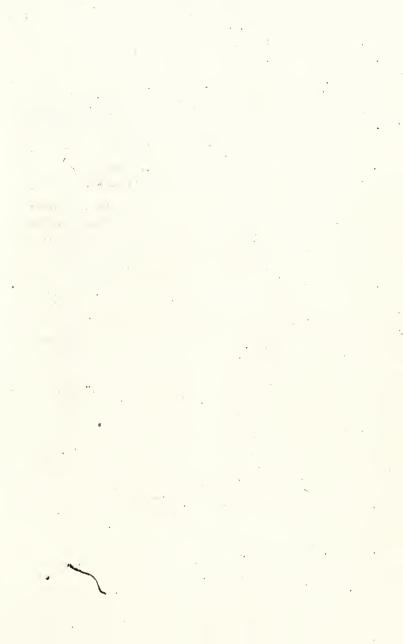

Both Mr. Clark's and Mr. Morgan's work have long since been out of print. Dr. Morgan's work was issued only to subscribers and of course since 1897 has been unobtainable anywhere, only 500 copies having been printed and the plates destroyed.

It is now proposed, if the answers to this letter warrant the undertaking, to re-issue Dr. Morgan's work as before, in monthly parts at the same price as before, TEN DOLLARS this sum to entitle the subscriber to entry of his own personal genealogical record; or if included in the first impression, to the continuation of his personal Family record down to the year 1913.

This is to say that, if a subscriber with his remittance sends us his name, and the names and dates of birth, marriage or death of his children, same will now be inserted at their proper places in the new Impression of the work.

Subscribers who are the male heads of Families if desiring their portraits, or the portraits of male heads of their families inserted, (if not contained in the first impression), can secure such insertion by remitting us photograph, with ten dollars additional to said advance subscription.

THE TERMS UPON WHICH THIS NEW IMPRESSION IS ISSUED ARE AS FOLLOWS:

Monthly parts as issued postpaid with insertion as one Family Line TEN DOLLARS, remitted on receipt of this letter WHICH WILL NOT UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES BE REPEATED.

After completion the price of unsold sets, if any, will be $15.00 with option to further advance price as sets appreciated in value.

Portraits of male ancestor or representative Ten Dollars on Receipt of this Letter.

Twelve copies can be forwarded to one subscriber for $100.00 or six copies for $50.00 if remitted in one advance payment on receipt of this letter or before said 250 copies of first monthly part are exhausted.

IF SUBSCRIBERS TO THE FIRST IMPRESSION OF DR. MORGAN'S WORK DESIRING CORRECTIONS IN THEIR ENTRY WILL SEND US THE SAME, NO CHARGE WILL BE MADE FOR INSERTING THEM.

This re-issue is undertaken with full concurrence of Dr. Appleton Morgan who has consented to act as advisory Editor of same and to whom any inquiries can addressed.

Monthly parts—25C copies only, same format as first impression. Illustrated with Arms, Portraits, etc.

Please send remittances, letters of inquiry, MSS., etc., to
